

Behind the electronic music project "Strandliebe" are the young South Tyrolean music producer Peter Cloud (25) and the Upper Austrian DJ Oliver Schernhuber (46).

They met through friends at a party, and music was the number one topic for the whole evening. After spending months in the studio together, they quickly noticed that they not only have the same taste in music, but also get along very well personally. Their weaknesses also canceled out by the strengths of the other.

In the summer of 2020, they took the opportunity to start the "Strandliebe" project together when they were offered a radio show on Ibiza Global Radio. After their success in the independent field, Peter and Oliver decided to add pop elements to their sound in order to gain a foothold in the mainstream. Both love the deep & organic sound they produced in 2021, but they were missing something to be able to indulge in their own music even better. At the end of summer 2021 they started working on the first "Pop House" track and were immediately satisfied with the result. At the time, no one could have guessed that this already meant admission to a major label. By the end of the year they refined their skills in the production area and were able to give the track the right professional and modern touch. At this point in time, two more pieces of music were created, which are already waiting to be published. At the beginning of 2022, Peter and Oliver aka Strandliebe were pleased to receive positive feedback when they first contacted Sony Music Austria. A few days later, another email came, and the rest is history. Sony Music Austria and Strandliebe will go together in the future. A dream came true.

The track "Lost in the night" was created after a legendary party night in Ibiza. Oliver and Peter wanted to capture the feeling of finally being in close contact with other people again after a long time and wrote the pop house number "Lost in the Night".

An irresistible melody - made for the lightheartedness of mild summer nights, a hook line that you can't get out of your ear after the first listen, a rousing sing-along refrain and charismatic vocals... everything a summer hit needs

Media- & Interview Request : musik@strandliebe.at